ARTIST STATEMENT: RACHEL DALY

Using oil paint to create an illusion of textiles and embroidery Rachel work pushes new ground within the textile contemporary art scene, bridging the gap between Painting and Textiles. This unique technique allows a certain sense of creative freedom that traditional needle and thread work would not permit. The viewer is enveloped into the tactile vibrant works, swept along by the illusion of thread and plunged into the dream like narrative of each piece.

ARTIST BIO: RACHEL DALY

Rachel is an English Artist living in Connecticut. Born and raised in Florence, Italy, surrounded by an abundance of history, culture and the eccentricities of life in an artistic circle, her childhood has without doubt heavily influenced her aesthetic and sense of space and material. After attending Wimbledon and Slade Art Foundations in London she went on to be accepted at Camberwell Art School in South London to study Drawing. Constantly questioning how materials can be used, how simplified forms take up space or blend into their environment, Rachel discards the "rules" and focuses in on instinctual form and mark making. Deconstructing materials and objects and reimagining them to create beautiful, bold and striking works.
